Amusements in New York.

WINTER GARDEN.

Miss Bateman essayed for the first time on Monday it last night to overflowing houses. The circumstance of this being her first appearance in a character calculated past, as in the present, lent to the occasion unusual in terest. Whether it be that she gathered inspiration from the consciousness of the boldness of such an effort in a gragedienne as yet so young, or that the crowded house caught up and reflected back her spirit, we know not, but she certainly has never yet appeared to so much advantage as in this character. If the enthusiasm of an auditionic is to be taken as a criterion of success, Miss Bateman won a complete and unqualified triumph. In the first act she was especially excellent. The celebrated speeches were given with a flerceness of intensity that completely carried away the house, and at its close she was called out amid a tumult of applause to receive the congratulations of the audience. The same may be said of the other great scenes. Indeed, the character of Lady Macboth, being made up of one strong passion, which overrides and sweeps down all others, and not requiring any delicacy of percaption, or the portrayal of any variety of shades of feeling eminently fits it to Miss Eutemen's individuality. The piece is announced for every evening this week, and we have little doubt will carry her engagement to a brilliant close.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.

The opening perfermance of Mr. Forrest drew together on Monday night one of those immense audiences with which this popular actor is on such occasions always acting; but it presents many points of originality interesting to those who have seen in it Charles Young, Macready and the younger Kean. The performance was listened to throughout with that breathless attention which only a master piece, or that which popular prejudice recognizes as such, can command. Mrs. Gladstone's Ophelia, though not a forcible, was a very judicious and carefully studied impersonation. The rest of the characters were very fairly cast, and the curtain feil amid well deserved applause.

Last night the favorite comedian, Mr. Hackett, made his first appearance this season, playing his great character of Jack Falstaff in Shakspere's "Henry the Fourth." The house was most deusely crowded, and Mr. Hackett's reception was most conduct. His impersonation of Sir John is too well known to require any extended notice. The piece is capitally played altogether, Mr. Wheatley, Mr. Shewell and Mrs. Gladstone sustaining their respective parts with great spirit. The tardiness of the scene shitter, two or three times during the performance, was the only drawback. To night Mr. Forrest will appear in "Richelieu," one of his best impersonations.

WALLACK'S OLD THEATRE.

WALLACK'S OLD THEATRE. Auschatz, re-opened this once fashionable house on Monday evening. From the close manner in which it was packet which, though peculiarly well suited for the initial performance of a German troupe, we did not expect, from the fate of former attempts of the same sort, to find very represented. We were most agreeably disappointed, the opera being given not only with a degree of vocal effect, but of dramatic vitality, which are not always to be found in the Italian representations of it. The soprano (Frau Rotter), though possessing a voice of limited compass, knows how to make an agreeable use of it, and is, besides, an excellent actress. The tenor, Herr Lotti, has a light, but very sweet organ, and sings correctly and with feeling. Herrs Graff and Weinlich are favorably known to our public. Fran Zimmerman took the part of Naney in place of Madamts Berkel, who was indiaposed, and did very well. The choral and orchestral effects exhibited careful discipline and liberality of expenditure; and, altogether, the ejera was as well put upon the stage as could be expected from the modest beginnings of the entryprise. The success, both artistical and otherwise, with which the performance was attended will, we trust, encourage the management to import a few more good singers from Germany. There are evidently amongst our resident German population taste and liberality enough to justify such the venture.

In the semi-pantonimic piece called "The French Spy," Cubas evineod the great versatility of her talent. The performance throughout was entirely successful. The entertainment concluded with some of the characteristic Castilian dances of Cubas and Ximenes, which were in themselves sufficient to repay a visit to these Gardeus.

THE ENLARGEMENT OF THE BATERRY.

The Pepple et. Cornelina Vanderbilt.—This is an action to restrain the defendant from creeting a pier in the waters of the harbor of New York at the Battery. The case was commenced in 1869, it is conteaded that the portion of the har bor upon which the defendant had entered, and in which he was erecting the pier in question, is in the water south of pier No. 1 No. th river, opposite the Battery and Battery place, and within 600 feel of the line of the Battery cs. it existed in 1821, and wished at the exterior pier time extensional by the set of the Logislature, passed April 17, 1857. The title of the pier of the set of the exterior pier time extensional by the set of the Logislature, passed April 17, 1857. The title of the pier of the component thereof for the purposes of commence and enjoyment thereof for the purposes of commence and enjoyment thereof for the purposes of commence and enjoyment thereof for the purposes of commence and environment, are alleged in the complaint and not denied in the answer. The defendant channes a right to erect the pier in quastion, under a resolution of the Common Comment of the only of New York, passed May 16, 1834, and approved by the May or. The plaintiffs set up that the decendant acquired to rights under the resolution of the Common Council of May 16, 1852, which entitled him to erect the oter in question, or which constitute any defence in this faction. If the restration was intended to operate as a geant, it was wonly void. The Common Council had no power to make any grant or disposition of the soft note water, or even to occupy it themselves, except in the manner and for the public trust preservious in the cause against the desendant, and a perpendal explanation of the interest.

A judgment was given upon the trial of the cause against the desendant, and a perpendal explanation restraining him from building the pier was granted. T comprising a Discussion of the various Means of acquiring and retaining knowledge and avoiding Error. B P. McGregor, A. M., 12mo, cloth, 30 coats; sheep, $1.

This treatise is the result of an attempt to comprise within moderate timit-excepting of general interest witch properly belongs to Logic, free from profits; observity of misrepresentation. Much that occurs in other works on the same subject has been exjected as useless, trelevant or onerous, while the author has endeavored to supply numerous deficiencies, and to exhibit a clear and accurate view of the principles and processes of logical thought, divosted of schoisstic figmants, which only perplex and misload the studenk.

Dean Siz.—This is to certify that your MANDRAKE PILLS AND SEAWEED TOMO have completely cured my wife of a congested iver of long stanting, during which time he was visited almost failty by our family physician, and the only thing he would prescribe for her was powerful emetre, smill her system was completely with out by solitions vomiting. Everything we could hear of we tried, but all to no purpose, and nearly my wife saw your advertisement in the paper, and concluded to go and see you, although she had little if any confidence in any don't a site the ere perience she went through. She had that our after the ere perience she went through. She had taken about four butter of TONIC and tures borse of Fills, and now can beast of a good health as ever she enjoyed in her life. I think this form of the most remarkable cures on record, and if publishing these lines will benefit the sick or affirmed, you are as likely to do so.
